

DAXplus® Family 30 – Invest in the driving forces of the national economy

Family-owned companies weather economic crises better, shore up the labor market, and enjoy dynamic growth, even in times of recession. This is the result of a study by the Center for European Economic Research (Zentrum für Europäische Wirtschaftsforschung – ZEW) and the Institute for SME Research (Institut für Mittelstandsforschung – ifm) in Mannheim. According to the ZWE's definition, 93 percent of all companies in Germany are family run. As such, more than half the total number of jobs (54 percent) and almost 50 percent of total revenues are generated by family-owned companies. In 2012, the 40 largest family-owned companies will together be larger than the 40 largest publicly held companies.

The DAXplus® Family 30 Index tracks the performance of listed family-run companies, where the founding family either has at least 25 percent of the voting rights or sits on the management board or supervisory board and has at least 5 percent of the voting rights. It comprises German and international companies from the Prime Standard of the Frankfurt Stock Exchange.

The index contains the 30 largest and most liquid equities and is designed to serve as an indicator for family-run SMEs that are looking to go public. The index constituents are weighted according to free float market capitalization, with the share of a single equity in the DAXplus® Family 30 limited to a maximum of 10 percent.
